MEXICO IS SEETHING WITH REVOLT

CALLES CLAIMS TO HAVE UPPER HAND, REVOLT AIMED

Against General Alvaro Obregon, His Rival For the Presidency—General Francisco Serrano and Thirteen of His Followers Fell Dead Before a Firing Squad in Morelos Monday—Serrano Was Former War Minister and Personal Friend of Obregon.

General Francisco Serrano, candidate for president of Mexico, and 13 lieutenants were executed after a summary court-martial in the state of Morelos, Tuesday.

Serrano, with General Arnulfo Gomez, another presidential aspirant was accused of having fomented a revolution to overthrow the P. Elias Calles government and prevent the election of General Alvaro Obregon as president to succeed Calles.

Federal forces at Torreón defeated a detachment of the Sixteenth battalion which joined the revolt. Lieutenant Colonel Manzanilla and other officers in the movement, were executed. The private soldiers said they did not know they were being held in revolt. They have been disarmed. Torreón is an important railroad center between El Paso and Mexico City in the state of Durango.

Announcement of the capture and execution of Serrano was made by General Jose Alvarez, chief of the presidential staff, and was contained in a statement to Mexican government officials Tuesday afternoon.

Federal troops are said to be in close pursuit of General Gomez. If captured he would be tried for treason. His execution is expected.

The Mexican government, under direction of President Calles, moved swiftly to crush the revolt according to information received from Mexico City. The arm of the government appeared to be directed especially at the leaders of the revolt, not so much attention being given to troops that were led from their barracks by the leaders.

The quick drive launched by the Mexican government to crush the revolution is meeting with unqualified success, according to word reaching Morelos Tuesday night.

A presidential warrant has been issued for General Gomez, who was charged particularly with revolutionary activities in Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

Reports given out by anti-Calles followers now refugeing in Laredo to the effect that more than 3,000 troops had revolted in Mexico City and that President Calles was virtually a prisoner were accepted with great reserve. Statements that the entire federal garrisons of Monterrey, Puebla, Guadalajara and Jalisco had gone over to the revolution also were taken with reservation.

It was not denied in Mexican official quarters, however, that attempts had been made by the revolutionists to reach these garrisons. The Mexican government officials contended that uprisings of small detachments of troops quickly were quelled.

Serrano and Gomez both were candidates for the presidency on the "no reelection" ticket. They opposed General Obregon, former president of Mexico, who is a candidate on a platform that calls for a continuation of the policies of the Calles administration.

Serrano and Gomez had met frequently during the campaign which was begun several months ago and discussed joining forces, but neither would withdraw as a candidate.

Both Serrano and Gomez charged that the Calles government was partial toward the candidacy of General Obregon. They were said to have issued secret manifestos declaring a fair election was impossible and that a resort to arms was the only alternative.

They are said to have prevailed upon high army officers to desert the Calles government and swing the troops under them to the banner of revolution.

That government, according to word received was largely a failure.

Thursday night was the time set for the revolting troops to be withdrawn from their barracks and assemble under the banner of revolution. The movement passed unnoticed in Mexico for several hours, according to the story of Mexican officials, because army maneuvers had been under way on the outskirts of Mexico City Sunday.

Troops marching thru the city attracted little attention. It was not until they had marched many miles to the south that loyal army leaders were aware of the movement.

At dawn 2,000 loyal troops, with airplanes, were sent in pursuit.

Serrano and his band were overtaken near Cuernavaca, in the state of Morelos, on the road to Vera Cruz. After a brief skirmish, the Serrano forces were defeated. The trial and execution of Serrano and his officers followed.

Privates and officers of low ranks in the revolting troops are expected to escape with light punishment, according to word reaching Laredo. A wholesale execution of troops would arouse the C. R. O. M., the Mexican Federation of Labor.

Historic Clock Still Runs After 312 Years

Peoria, Ill.—Three hundred and twelve years old and still running, a clock owned by James R. Harrison, Peoria, is claimed to be the oldest in the state in actual use.

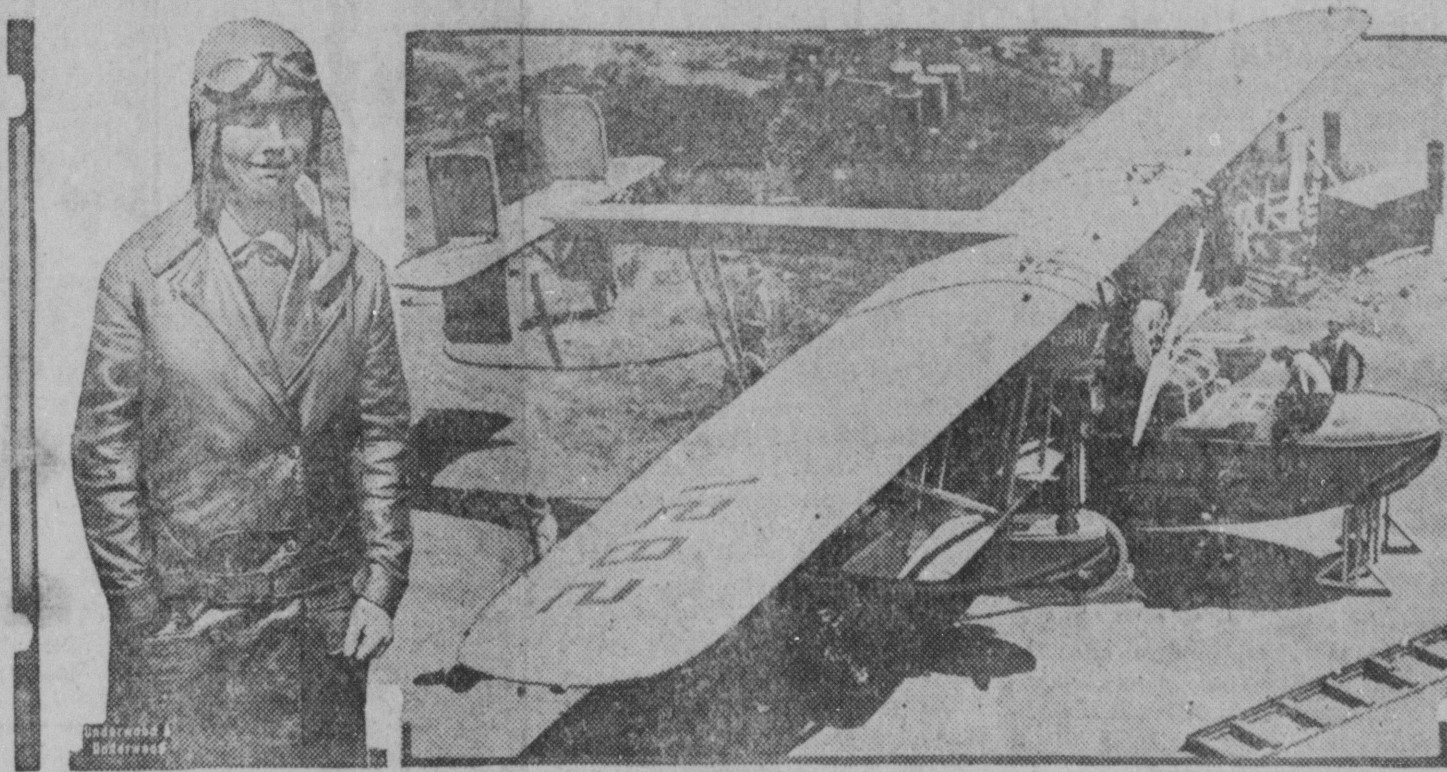

It was brought over from England before the War of 1812 and witnessed that war and the Civil war in the state of Virginia. During the latter struggle, it helped make history by being the hiding place of an eighteen-year-old Union sympathizer in a house surrounded by Confederates.

As the Confederates entered the house from both front and rear doors, the youth squeezed into the bottom of the old clock and escaped detection. However, as he made his escape from the clock he overturned it and nearly ruined its usefulness. Several parts were broken and the clock sat idle for several years. Later it was fixed up and has been running since.

The National museum says that for short-distance running the cheetah is the fleetest of animals. This animal belongs to the cat family, and is long and slender of body. It is found in India and Africa and is trained to run down antelopes.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Lancaster—Mildred Louise Benson, four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Benson, is dead from burns received about a week ago while playing with matches. Funeral Friday.

Washington C. H.—Little hope is held for Bert Cull who shot himself in the side yesterday after serving as a pallbearer at the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. George Keason, who hanged herself in the garage of her home last Saturday.

Newark—Chased from Pennsylvania to Montana since June 24, Herbert Stanger, 32, Canton, has been bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond for alleged forgery. The offense for which Stanger was first sought was theft of a check book from Robert Richardson of Newark and alleged forgery of his name on a $15 check.

Athens—The prolonged suspension of coal mining in the Hocking Valley and its effect on all business was further emphasized when Athens county commissioners rejected many requests for financial aid over the district.

Urbana—Albert E. Neff, 19, wanted at Springfield, Lima, Port Clinton and West Liberty for alleged forgery was indicted by the October grand jury, within an hour after he had been arraigned in Mayor C. C. Craig's court and plead guilty to the charge of forging the name of his commanding officer.

French Politeness Includes Officials

Paris.—Just how polite one ought to be is debated, even in France.

A new discussion has been aroused by the ubiquitous tone of a form that hunters must sign if they wish a license in the deer department in central France.

"M. le prefect: I have the honor to solicit, through your kindness," etc., runs the preamble of the form. It concludes: "And I ask you to accept the expression of my great respect."

A Frenchman doesn't have to depend on an official's "kindness" for a hunting license, comment some critics, and he doesn't have to show any "great respect," but merely conventional, decent politeness.

Some suggest that the prospective hunter ought merely to write: "I, the undersigned, ask for a hunting license," etc.

Valuable Fertilizer

"Nitrated peat" is the fertilizer produced by an Italian chemist from explosives containing ammonium nitrate. The explosive is placed in a measured amount of water, which dissolves out the nitrate, and after a short time is decanted as a saturated solution. This is mixed with peat powder and evaporated. The product contains about 43 per cent of ammonium nitrate, and has been shown to have fertilizing value nearly equal to that of sodium nitrate.

British Birth Rate Now Europe's Lowest

London.—The birth rate in England and Wales has now fallen below that of France. With the exception of Sweden, it is lowest of the principal European countries, according to the registrar general.

The birth rate for 1926 was 17.8 per 1,000 population. Excepting the rate of 17.7 in 1918, the last year of the war, which at that time was regarded as phenomenally low, that for 1926 is the lowest recorded since the establishment of civil registration in this country.

In view of the continued decline during the fiscal half of the current year, it is probable that the rate for 1927 will be lower than that for 1926.

FIRE DESTROYS HOSLER PACKING COMPANY PLANT

Loss $50,000—Was Partially Covered By Insurance—Built In 1886.

The Hosler Packing company, East High street, caught fire about four o'clock Wednesday morning and the main buildings of the plant were practically destroyed. The loss is estimated at $50,000, partially covered by insurance.

The fire alarm was sent in by Edward Blum, of Watt street, who discovered the buildings on fire when he arose shortly before four o'clock. He hurried to box 14, corner Main street and McCrea avenue and turned in the alarm. The department responded promptly, but before the department could lay their hose and throw water, the buildings were a mass of flames. Owing to their frame construction and being saturated with grease, the buildings were greedily licked up by the flames and soon all were gutted.

The fire, it is thought caught in the building where sausage is manufactured. The flames destroyed the roofs and interior of the brick building where the engine and boiler is located. Nothing is left of this building but the walls and smokestack. The frame building north of the engine room, and the roof over the cold storage plant were destroyed.

The last man at the plant was Edward McFarland, who left at eight o'clock. He closed and locked the plant and the only fire in the building was that under the boiler in the engine room, and this was low and was banked.

Defective wiring may have caused the conflagration, but an examination of the wiring by employees of the Ohio Utilities company, showed that the fuses had not been blown.

The owners of the plant, Charles H. Smith, of this city, and Harry P. Reed, of Ashville, have not been able to ascertain the real amount of their losses, and it will take several days before they will be able to get at it, as there is a considerable amount of meat in pickle and also some fresh meat in cold storage, the condition of which they will not be able to estimate until the burned buildings cool off, but from present appearance it is not thought that the meats in pickle and in cold storage have been damaged. If smoke has rendered it unfit for the market, these meats will be salvaged and taken over by the insurance companies.

The insurance agencies of Boyle & Johnson, T. P. Brown and Hummel & Plum carried the risks.

The plant was started back in 1886 by W. R. Hosler, who was then the owner of two meat markets. He conceived the idea of building a packing plant. Later on the company was incorporated and substantial buildings were constructed and these have been added to, so that the plant had become quite extensive at the time of his death.

The Hosler interests were later purchased by George K. Wright and Paul McGinnis. The plant is now owned by Charles H. Smith, of this city, and Harry P. Reed, of Ashville, Smith being the owner of two-thirds.

The fire did not destroy all of the buildings, as the wind was in the right direction and some were saved.

Farm Flock Is Most Important

Poultry Still Is Backbone of Industry on Specialized Farms.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In spite of the growing importance of the specialized poultry farm and the commercial farm flock the general farm flock is still the backbone of the poultry and egg industry from the standpoint of volume of production, according to Roy C. Potts, chief poultry marketing specialist, United States Department of Agriculture.

Small Farm Flocks.

The farm flock is rather small in size and is only a small part of the activity on the general farm, often not being considered a very important part. But in the aggregate, more than 80 per cent of the total production of poultry and eggs comes from just such flocks. Because of its minor importance the general farm flock is likely to be subjected to some neglect at times, to be less cared for at all times, and to consist of stock that has not been highly improved.

Specialized poultry farming, however, has been on the increase during the last six or seven years and continues to become more and more important. Specialization is mainly along the lines of egg production. On specialized farms poultry is the sole or main business and the owner is dependent upon it almost exclusively for his living. Generally the most up-to-date methods are employed and the most improved stock used.

Commercial Flocks.

The commercial farm flock, on the other hand, is not an exclusive enterprise on the farm but is one that is given more than usual attention in management and breeding. The poultry and egg crop of the country is produced by these three primarily different types of flocks or farms, the most important of which is still the general farm flock.

Alsike Clover Thrives on Sour or Wet Soils

On wet, undrained fields where the production of ordinary crops is difficult or impossible alsike clover can be made to produce large quantities of valuable feed, says F. L. Davis of the soils department of the Missouri College of Agriculture. Alsike clover will grow and produce well on sour land where the common red clover wouldn't make a stand. It is the one variety of clover that tolerates acid soil.

The most important reason for advocating alsike clover is that it will grow on sour or wet soils to which other crops are poorly adapted. The most important benefits derived from growing it on these soils are: (1) It does not feed the land down to such an extent that it lowers the production of the following crop, and (2) it makes one of the best green manures of the legumes.

Greater yields of crops are grown following alsike clover than other crops. An extended experiment at the Rhode Island experiment station comparing cabbages, mangels, rutabagas, buckwheat, potatoes, rye, corn, millet, oats, onions, red clover, squash, timothy, alsike, and red top showed that alsike was almost unsurpassed in this respect. Alsike clover produces almost as well as red clover and better than crimson or white.

Substantial Floor for

Machine Shed Essential

Any implement house is better than none—even the simplest, most inexpensive type pays for itself in a season or two. But from the standpoint of convenience it pays to build machine sheds, and a floor of some kind is a good feature.

If of wood, the floor should be of two-inch planks, laid on joists or beams, which in turn should be kept off the ground by flat stones or concrete blocks. Such floors last quite long, especially if there be ventilation beneath them to keep the wood dry.

Concrete makes the ideal floor for a machine shed, of course. It can be laid right on the ground, if it is well drained.

Agricultural Notes

Crop rotation is the surest method of weed control.

Save the straw. It will help to take the place of hay this fall and winter.

Canada field peas probably make the heaviest cover—and to stop washing they are hard to beat.

In silo building, the first and most important consideration is its size in relation to amount of stock kept.

Early planted corn may not grow much larger than later planting, but the early planting will mature first.

Well-rotted barnyard manure is a good fertilizer for the garden. It should be applied at the rate of 20 tons to an acre and should be worked into the soil.

Dangerous When Aroused

The hippopotamus is naturally timid, though subject to fits of panic or rage. When wounded or enraged this animal is regarded by sportsmen as perhaps the most dangerous beast to be encountered.

Circular Front Skirt Is Feature of Dress

The cut of a dress must give the effect of being simple if it is to be smart, says the Woman's Home Companion. The dress illustrated achieves this simple yet individual effect by means of an unusual yoke in the blouse and a skirt which is cut circular in front and plain at the back. The yoke follows the line of the collar in the front and ends in a point at the back from which hangs a little diamond-shaped tab. Deep revers on the collar add the finishing touch to this unusually smart dress. This design is suited to such fabrics as wool georgette, wool voile, crepe faille and lightweight kasha.

Velvet the Outstanding Fabric of Autumn Mode

It is beyond question that velvet is the outstanding fabric of the fall mode. The Paris openings, writes a Paris correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, have favored it above all other materials and this predilection has been shared by both modiste and couturier. Velvet, as we know it today, is a lightweight, supple, soft stuff that is beautifully colored and may be softly draped, fine tucked or shirred; molded to the head or cemented together to make a becomingly soft brim. In fact, it will do practically anything that is asked of it. There are also lovely stitched velvets, gold embroidered velvets and pantomime velvets uniquely embossed into effects resembling flowers. There is no color that is not represented in dozens of shades, and no possible combination of colors that have not been tried out. For summer wear the colors were softly vivid, bright, but mellowed by a silvery sheen; but as the present season glides into the fall the chapeaux take on the shades of autumn—ruby reds, woodsy browns and gray-tinted blues like the misty November days. But never for a moment has the popularity of black and beige waned; they are the two distinctively smart colors and will still be of paramount importance.

Other soft, pliable fall hat materials are grosgrain and faille taffeta. These fabrics are made into exquisite little models of the sports variety and are exceedingly smart, but lack the softness and drapability of velvet. However, grosgrain comes into its own as a trim on velvet and felt hats in the form of bands, bows, brim edges, and is frequently combined with velvet in toques and cloches in the form of insets, brim facings, or uniquely shaped geometric designs of various colors. Incidentally, trimmings in the present mode are more or less negligible.

Half Fur Coat Is Among Novelties of Season

Half a fur coat not only is better than half a loaf, but in many cases it is far more fashionable than a full coat. That is, if the coat is denuded of no more than its collar. Some of the smartest fur garments now are made without collars and this lack is supplemented by large and expensive stoles or scarfs composed of two or more skins of beaver, fox, fisher or sable. The new mole skin coats are in conventional designs to the waist, but from the waist to hem the skins are worked in the most extraordinary lightning flash and chevron designs.

French Shoe Vamps Are Longer; Like Yank Toes

The short-vamped shoes which French women have preferred for generations are gradually being supplanted by the American toed variety. Less pointed than new English lasts, but much rounder than they used to be, are the newest French shoes. Vamps gradually are lengthening, and French women's feet begin to look more like those of their American visitors.

Dancing Frock

A frock that almost dances by itself is made of white taffeta with a wide hem lined with bright green ribbon which shows through faintly. It is slashed at one side to disclose the ribbon, and there is a touch of it at the irregular corsage, and a large bow in the back.

NICE MYSTERY FOR SHERLOCK

Sleuths Unable to Find How Money Placed In Ship's Safe Disappeared.

New York, Oct. 3.—(UP).—A mystery that might baffle Sherlock Holmes was revealed today when the Atlantic transport liner Minnetonka docked with 272 passengers from London and Cherbourg.

Somewhere between London and New York a diamond necklace, other jewelry and money valued at $2500, disappeared from the ship's safe.

The safe had not been burglarized. The lock was triple safeguarded and the purser and his two assistants, the only ones who had access to it, were regarded as beyond suspicion. The losers were Mrs. Robert Gregory and Stanley K. Gage, a real estate broker, both of Chicago.

Had Three Keys

Today when the safe was opened, all the envelopes were there except Gage's and Mrs. Gregory's.

The safe had three keys. Two were required to open it. The other gave access to a strong box in which the two keys were kept. At night the purser kept the strong box always in his possession. By day it was in a drawer to which no one but his assistants possibly could have access.

The only theory detectives could find at all tenable was that the envelopes never reached the interior of the safe, but that some clever thief had switched them while the owners were making their deposits. There was nothing to support that theory, however, and the two passengers made their deposits on different days.

OHIO WELFARE CONFERENCE

Lapp, Director of Social Action of the National Catholic Council and 1926-27 President of the National Conference of Social Work, appears on one of the evening programs. John S. Initiative Bill For Chiropractic Board.

Dr. C. E. Shilling of Willard, Ohio, Secretary of the Ohio State Chiropractic Society and Hon. B. Franklin Lear, Member of the House of Representatives in the Eighty-seventh General Assembly called upon local Chiropractors to complete arrangements for the initiated Chiropractic Bill to be voted on November 8.

"Chiropractic has fought, and won its way in 29 states of the Union, which have legally authorized and permitted the Chiropractors to practice their art of healing, and to conduct their affairs by men within their own ranks. The people of California settled this question by referendum Contest with a substantial majority of three hundred thousand."

Ohio has for some time been a great battle ground and each year the Chiropractors have gained many new friends and now they have succeeded in getting the required number of signatures necessary to enable them to place upon the ballot for the people's decision, the question "Shall the Chiropractors be given a separate board of their own, without and additional expense to the taxpayers?" 1 4 1t

Show Smart Lines in Autumn Frocks

Season's Innovations in Fall Wear Make Latest Styles Most Flattering.

Of primary interest to the woman of fashion this fall is the changed silhouette, which, so long predicted and prophesied, at last seems an accomplished fact. Whether it is a natural reaction against too severe and simple styles or whether the Parisian designers have found in the recent boyish modes not enough scope for the exercise of their talents it is hard to say. One thing is certain writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, elegance, old-time elegance, has returned, and the first departure from recently accepted standards of rigid simplicity is in the matter of line. Skirts, in fact, are at last longer. Such couturiers as Poiret, Molyneux, Drecoll, Jane Regny, Cyber and others of like note have added actual length to the hemline. This additional length, however, is not more than one inch; but when knees have been so generally exposed to view, even an inch is something. Then there is the irregular hemline, which is possibly a more interesting development. The conventionally short skirt is retained, but an appearance of length is produced by pointed sides, fluttering panels, low descending drapes, longer backs, and, in the case of evening gowns, actual trains. Molyneux shows these effects in addition to the added inch of actual length noted above. With him in the movement for the irregular hem are various great designers, such as Worth, Patou, Premet, Champecommunal, Miller Soeurs and some five or six others.

Dipped hemlines were really originated as early as last spring by Louiseboulanger, whose familiar model of molded bodice and skirt that was short in front and dropped gradually at the sides to full length in back, has been popular all summer. In the printed chiffon version which this house originated, the model is still appearing at the smartest resorts in Europe. Since it is in reality a semi-period frock with rather full skirt, it will undoubtedly continue its existence during the winter, being sponsored by the young girl and that type of slim matron who is at her best in a gown of period influence. This sort of gown has received more prominence than usual in the fall showings, Agnes, Redfern, Lenief, Bishop and others rather making a feature of it.

All frocks, even daytime ones, show added fullness in the skirt. The circular line is favored, generally at front and sometimes at the sides.

Draping Is Prominent.

An immense amount of draping appears. It is one of the most practical and effective features of the mode, for it has such infinite possibilities. It is the plump woman's kindest friend, since a mass of draping cleverly manipulated conceals bulging contours and gives long and slenderizing lines as no other fabric treatment can. It is strikingly graceful, too, and in the lustrous satins and new transparent velvets it effects a self-trim unsurpassed for elegance and beauty.

The tiered effect so much seen this summer with printed front continues in great variety. Patou makes it in circular fashion, Champecommunal in diagonal. Molyneux uses double tiers which suggest a tunic. In fact, the tunic silhouette itself is one of the newest notes for fall.

The bloused bodice above a snug hipline continues, as does the bolero. The latter is very versatile. It may end just below the shoulder blades or drop to any length from there to the hips. It is an excellent device for concealing defects of figure. Along with the tendency to lengthen the skirt at the hem, appears a similar tendency to length at the hip, this achieved naturally enough by raising the waistline. Back to normality has been the cry of the waistliners for some time, but, in spite of much propaganda, the mooted line remained fixed somewhere around the hips. Today the very low line remains, the hip-line also; but there is a movement on the part of some important houses to raise the waistline, if not to normal at least to nearly normal. Nicole Groult goes the whole way and shows models with waistlines where they were before women adopted the pencil-line silhouette.

Necklines are softer and more becoming than they have been for some years. Lelong continues the collarless effect, but adds fabric bows as a trim. The soft turn-back collar, which gave a flattering neckline for the older woman or for the very thin woman, is sponsored by Chanel. Even high collars appear on some models. Talbot uses them, as do Doucet and Drecoll. Many lace collars and neckbands finish dresses of black transparent velvet. Sometimes a navy dress has an inset yoke of flesh or salmon. One smart model of black crepe had a yoke and sleeves of white crepe. The same type of gown was also seen in black and salmon. When one takes into account the vast amount of costume jewelry sponsored it would seem as if, between collars and necklaces, neck lines were destined to be very feminine and flattering this winter. This is news that will mean little to the flapper or the debutante, but for the older woman it is priceless.

Jumper Still Popular.

In sports clothes the jumper continues to be the high note. It appears in jerseys and novelty woollens with especial emphasis on the Rodier weaves. The lines of metal thread woven into the dark fabric are very smart and distinctive. The main difference in styling the jumper this year is in the matter of length. The jumper has grown longer, not long enough to be awkward, just long enough to allow a becoming belt. Some houses are showing a three-quarter length jumper. Talbot and Regny among these, but it is not probable that the more becoming shorter length will be displaced in popular favor. Sweaters, of course, still hold their place in sports wear, the high-necked model shown by Regny and Drecoll introducing a new note.

The elegance movement has made itself felt nowhere more visibly than in the realm of fabrics. This promises to be a winter when velvet will predominate. It is shown in printed patterns for sports wear. It makes charming frocks, evening gowns, coats, evening wraps, handbags and hats. In fact, some houses show a distinct tendency to match or harmonize dress and hat materials, as, for instance, a lustrous sateen with broadcloth costume and with the velvet dress a hat of self fabric. Although various types of velvet are shown, the transparent variety is distinctly in first place.

Crepe Satin for Evening.

Crepe satin is also considered highly important for both daytime and evening wear. The present mode of applying bands of the dull side of the fabric to the lustrous inside as a trim, and vice versa, is undoubtedly effective. This really charming material seems likely to have a longer run for evening than for daytime, because its softness lends itself perfectly to draping and its luster and the beautiful shades in which it appears are too becoming for women to cast it aside quickly.

The compact is always with us but at least the designers are introducing changes on the old forms. Now, a most literary-looking case contains powder and rouge. The container takes the form of a small book bound in calf or morocco, in green, black or maroon. The design worked out on the leather is of gold in Spanish effect. This is a welcome relief from the everlasting round metal vanity.

Black satin is promised a tremendous vogue for fall and this means pearl jewelry, for the somber hue needs the luster of pearls to relieve it. Pearls are appearing in grape cluster designs of white or deep pink. They are worn as earring, hat ornaments, occasionally as bracelet charms and most often as a drop at the end of a silver or near-platinum chain.

St. Rita

St. Rita was canonized in 1900. She is called the saint of the impossible, and is generally pictured holding a bunch of roses. When she was dying, it was in the winter, and cold, and she asked one of the nuns at her bedside to go to the garden to pick her a rose. Those about her bed thought that her mind was wandering, but one of them, as a matter of form, went to the garden, and, behold, on one of the bushes was a beautiful rose.

CIRCLEVILLE'S COUNTRY CLUB COMING ALONG

Projectors Seem Very Much Encouraged--To Hold Meeting Next Week.

A clay model of the Country Club grounds will be placed on exhibition in the show window of the Ohio Utilities company Wednesday evening showing the proposed location of the club grounds.

The grounds are plenty large enough for a nine hole golf course, the same as Chillicothe and going twice around this course gives you the standard distance of 18 holes.

Besides, the grounds are located beautifully, as a practice ground can also be placed to give you a little warming up before starting out. Tennis and Roque courts will be placed on the grounds and dancing will be given following social affairs. It is something this city has lacked for an age. Other towns of this size have elegant country clubs and they are maintained in first class manner.

The projectors of the Country Club will, no doubt, exercise the option they have on the Emanuel Valentine farm, as a great deal of interest has been taken in the project and the committee is very much enthused and encouraged by the reception they have been given by the public.

The club is not operated for profit. If the association meets expenses, that is all they will care for, as it is a project purely for pleasure, for the entertainment of members, their families and friends.

Effort to "Pin Down" President's Failure

Nicholas Murray Butler's attempt to "smoke out" President Coolidge on a third term did not succeed, but did revive a story told last summer while Mr. Coolidge was at the White Pine camp in the Adirondacks.

According to the gossips the President was out on one of the lakes fishing when the sky became overcast. The boatman remarked that the dark clouds indicated rain. Mr. Coolidge made no comment. After a while the sky grew blacker and the boatman again remarked that he guessed it was going to rain. Still Mr. Coolidge was silent.

Then came the distant roar of thunder. A sharp flash of lightning was followed by another sharp peal of thunder. Rain began to fall. "Well," said the President's companion, questioning, "I guess we're going to get that shower."

The President looked at him and demanded sharply: "What are you trying to do, pin me down?"—Los Angeles Times.

Earth Still Young
The earth still is just a kid, remarks Capper's Weekly. It has lived only one-half-millionth of its allotted existence, if the scientists haven't slipped in their figures. But, for that matter, we can't even imagine what life upon it would be like one hundred hence.

Harmony Is The Keynote Of The Child's Bedroom

Here wall paper, curtains, blanket and bedspread blend to make the youngster's room a cheerful.

ALL the various types of experts agree on the proper bringing up of children agree that the more sunny, light, cheery color, and fresh air you can give them the better they will be both mentally and physically. Children cannot thrive in dark dismal rooms any more than a plant can blossom in your coldest room, and it is vastly important that we should plan the bedrooms of small boys and girls, and later their playrooms, with all the thought and care of which we are capable.

If the room is north start with sunny colors,—light yellow walls, paper with tiny pink flowers scattered over it, such as is shown in the illustration, has a garden-like quality that gives the room cheer and freshness at once. The green in the flower leaves so this shade is repeated in the thin curtains and the painted furniture. The other furnishings harmonize in color, even to the animal blanket thrown over the bed, which is pale pink with cream colored figures. The room has plenty of space for toys and pets, for every child should be taught to take care of his own belongings, and value them. SECRET CLOSET OF STORY FAME MAY BE DISCLOSED

House Where Herman Melville Wrote "Moby Dick" May Be Restored.

Pittsfield, Mass.—"Arrowhead," the old mansion in which Herman Melville lived 13 years and where he wrote his famed whaling story, "Moby Dick," may yield the truth about its secret closet.

The old house on Holmes road, now near dilapidation, has passed from the hands of the author's kindred. The new owners and their plans have not been disclosed, but there is a possibility that the old structure may be restored and preserved, it is said.

It is in the mammoth old chimney of the house that the secret closet may be found. The chimney is 12 feet square at its base and dominates the house.

Melville himself mentions the mysterious closet in his "I and My Chimney." He speaks of the chimney and himself as "two gray-haired old smokers," both "old settlers."

He termed the chimney the bully of the establishment. It was built of brick and stone and was placed in the very center of the house. On all four sides are hearths. Built into it are numerous small closets and cupboards.

Melville colors the suggestion of a hidden closet and possibly hidden treasure with a reference to a possibly fictitious merchant in the Indian trade once making his abode within its walls.

On the stones and panels of the chimney he had these words inscribed: "It is resolved between me and my chimney that I and my chimney will never surrender."

In writing of the closet, Melville said:

"At the second landing, midway up the chimney, is a mysterious door, entering into a mysterious closet; and here I keep mysterious cordials, of a choice, mysterious flavor, made by the constant maturing and subtle ripening of the chimney's gentle heat, distilled through that mass of masonry. Better for wines is it than voyages to the Indies; my chimney itself a tropic."

Local historians say the house was built in 1780 by Capt. David Bush, who made a famous inn of it for years. Melville acquired the mansion and began living there in 1851. William B. Morewood, who married a niece of the author, last occupied the old house. It was put up for sale several months ago.

Saved by Fast Clock

Two hundred Buenos Aires workmen owe their lives to the fact that a clock was five minutes fast. They fled out of the drug manufacturing establishment where they were working five minutes before they were supposed to. The last man had hardly got out when a terrific explosion wrecked the building almost completely.

BLACKSTONE PERFORMANCE PLEASES ALL

A capacity audience greeted Blackstone, the magician, at the Grand opera house Tuesday evening and from start to finish he held the great crowd in almost breathless suspense, and there were many expressions of appreciation and pleasure at his mystifying performance.

His tricks were many and varied and demonstrated clearly that Blackstone has no superior. He can do all that other great artists in this line have ever been able to perform and withal, his show is clean well worth the time and money it takes to see it.

All who were fortunate enough to be present Monday or Tuesday nights are loud in their praises of Blackstone.

Tonight will witness the last performance in this city and if you have not seen him, don't fail to attend, as a rich treat is in store for you.

Many of those who attended Monday night were on hand for the performance on Tuesday night, and will also be present tonight at the last show.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mrs. E. M. Huff, of East Franklin street, attended the wedding of her friend, Miss Madeline Mercedes Barr, daughter of Mrs. William E. Barr of 480 South Seventeenth street, Columbus, to Aloys C. Beichleman, of 458 South Whittier street, which was celebrated at Holy Cross church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, Rev. P. C. Schneider officiating.

Lawrence Heiskell, son of Clifford P. Heiskell and Miss Anna Graves were married at the bride's home last Saturday evening in Madison, Wisconsin. Among those who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunlap and daughter, Margaret, of Williamsport, and Miss Emily Yates, Clifford P. Heiskell and son, John Heiskell, of this city.

About 55 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Gibson near Williamsport, Sunday, October 2, in honor of the fifty-first birthday anniversary of Mr. Frank McAfee, father of Mrs. Gibson. Those who enjoyed the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy McAfee and daughters; Helen, Audrey, Jessie and Margaret, of Marion; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Myers and daughters, Ruth Anna and Alice; Mr. Richard McClintock, of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. I. D. McAfee and sons, Garnold Denton and James, Mrs. Susan McAfee, Mrs. Lawrence Miller and sons Stanley, Donald, Robert and Fred, of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. William Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. George Schaefer and son, Billy, Miss Georgia Hall, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. William Reid of Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Friece, of Chillicothe; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Crawford and grandchildren; Ruth, Annabel, Mrs. Hattie Riggins and son, Loren, of Robtown; Mr. and Mrs. Merle McAfee and son Darl, of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank McAfee, Mr. and Mrs. Millard McAfee, of Meade. All enjoyed a bountiful dinner at the noon hour. Ice cream and cake was served in the evening.

POOR LIGHT PUTS STRAIN ON NERVES

The average American home is only half lighted, asserts Miss Helen G. McKinlay of Harrison, N. J.

Miss McKinlay is one of a score of engineers and eye conservationists carrying on a nation-wide investigation of light, sight and safety under the direction of Richard E. Simpson of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. She is studying the effect of inadequate lighting in the home.

Sufficient lights, all shaded, and a center light in each room are the essentials of a well-lighted home, declares Miss McKinlay. She sees no harm in reading in bed providing the light is good.

"It takes 12 per cent of the nervous energy the body generates to see under normal conditions," she explains. "When there is poor lighting 50 per cent is required."

"Every well-lighted kitchen should have lights above the sink. If you work and can't see well, your irritability is increased. Why lose so much nervous energy in the kitchen?"

Queer Time Measurement

In the mountains of Montenegro, distance is often measured by the time it takes to smoke a cigarette. They are moderate and presume that a normal cigarette smoker lights one every half hour or so. Consequently, a cigarette's walk would be from one and a half to two miles.

AMUSEMENTS

Taking New York city life—the life of the idle rich, usually regarded as a tinselled paradise and delving beneath it into grim tragedies and desperate longings that encompass the slaves of gold, Edmund Goulding, famous author and screen director, has given the world one of the most poignant dramas in modern times.

This is "Women Love Diamonds," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production now playing at the Met theater.

It is a terrific drama—its intensity amazes, and thru it runs a love story of remarkable beauty. It is set in the home of the very rich; it exposes their foibles and their shame—it is a striking exposition of the torment of human souls under shackles of silk; it is a story that will long live.

But not only it is a triumph for the author and producer—it is no less a triumph for a very remarkable little actress, Pauline Starks. Owen Moore plays the hero, and offers a remarkable cleancut characterization, with much whimsical humor. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., is acceptable as a young millionaire, while Lionel Barrymore, in the "heavy" role, achieves a veritable triumph.

The well balanced cast includes Cissy Fitzgerald, Gwen Lee, Dorothy Phillips, George Cooper, Constance Howard, Carol Wines and others.

Heavily Jeweled Mummy

Among recent important discoveries, in Egypt, according to an Egyptian correspondent, is the finding in Egypt's western desert of a tomb containing the mummy of a woman, presumably a queen, covered with jewels of priceless description. Among these are 18 bracelets of gold and silver, five necklaces in brilliants on her neck and a superhead crown studded with brilliants. Near the body were found other necklaces in sapphires and brilliants, also a statuette beautifully carved from porphyry. Hieroglyphics on the tomb indicate that the body is that of a princess who lived 3,000 years ago, but it has not been possible yet to establish to what dynasty she belonged.

"FORGET YOUR SEX"

Detroit, Mich.—Forget your sex when you enter the business world if you would be successful was the advice given to women in an address here by Edith Mae Cummings, who in four years rose from a telephone switchboard to be a millionaire real estate operator and one of the big business women of America.

"Sexlessness in business is the keynote of a woman's success," said Miss Cummings at the opening of the Edith Mae Cummings School of Business Science for women. "A successful business career is built on brains and nothing else. Mind knows no sex and in business, women must meet men on equal terms. Beauty and feminine allurements are not business assets. The lipstick and the rouge pot mean nothing in cold industrial competition. Business success never yet was founded on sex appeal.

"To women embarking upon a business career, my advice is to analyze yourselves and select the vocation for which you are best fitted. This is all important. We cannot all be great as salesmen, merchants, or financiers. But there is something that all of us can do better than we can do anything else. Forget the old tradition of a 'weaker sex' and waive all claims to masculine gallantry. Remember that your fight for success is to be a sexless fight with men and women as your rivals and depend entirely upon your own intellect and force of character. Personal ambition and hard work will do the rest. Genuine ability is bound to get to the top."

The curtain dropped on the 1927 season Sunday with only one contest on for position. The St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs, 6-3, and gained second place in the National League.

2000 Miles Farther in 25,243 Less Minutes

THE public thinks of such trains as the "Century" and the "Chief" as being fast. They are. But it requires over 65,600 minutes for 45 of the world's fastest trains, going in all directions from Chicago, to run 40,000 miles. And these trains get MANY fresh engines, at regular intervals, in order to make this remarkable speed. Contrast this phenomenal performance of three Auburn fully equipped STOCK cars that ran 42,000 miles in less than 40,435 minutes (exact duplicates in every way of the Auburn cars every Auburn dealer has). Here is an amazing record of performance, endurance and value never before approached, let alone equalled. No change of engines for these three stock cars. No favoritism, but the hardest kind of driving, continuously, under American Automobile Association official supervision, on the Atlantic City Speedway. To even RUN 42,000 continuous miles, at much less speed, would be a tremendous tribute to ANY automobile's efficiency and stamina. That is farther mileage and infinitely harder punishment than any three average private owners impose on their cars in a whole year's service. But no other car has ever survived an official test of this magnitude and distance. Three Auburn cars DID it, at speeds that overwhelmingly break all records. Not only that, but we KNOW that Auburn cars can go much farther at even FASTER speed. The purpose of this test was not speed, altho that is sensational and establishes Auburn supreme in this respect. The real purpose was to prove in the acid test of this proving grounds that Auburn cars ARE better designed, better built, more efficient, and more durable. In these highly competitive days of extravagant claims, the public is entitled to the unvarnished truth about the relative value of motor cars. It is what a car DOES and not what its builders SAY that determines VALUE. Drive an Auburn Straight Eight and if it does not sell itself you will not be asked to buy.

RETAIN LOVE OF HUNTING FOXES
Ozark Pioneers Train Their Dogs Not to Harm Small Animals.

Springfield, Mo.—Fox hunting, picturesque sport of the pioneers, is enlisting new devotees in the Ozarks through annual summer fox hunts and picnics being held by several county fox hunters' associations.
Choosing a pleasant camping ground on a wooded hillside near a spring in the midst of territory known to harbor foxes, the hunters usually devote four days to the meet.
Recently the Dade county Fox Hunters' association went into camp and later the Cedar county hunters gathered for the annual event.
Fox hunting always has been followed by lovers of the outdoor sports of the Ozarks, who kept from one to half a dozen of the ungainly foxhounds, which they prized highly and at which many shafts of wit have been aimed in the past by visitors to the hills. It is only in the last eight or ten years, however, that the hunters have fallen into the universal organization habit so far as to form associations with duly elected officers.
Fox hunting really is fox chasing—with the hope that the prey will not be caught. Strange as it may seem, fox hunters are the best of friends the little animals have. They want the foxes protected that their dogs may have many chases in the future.
Unlike fox hunting in England, where the country is not so covered by underbrush and wooded hills, the Ozark sport is not carried on by following the hounds on horseback. Instead, the hunters get their thrills by listening to the tumultuous chorus of baying dogs racing after the fox as it moves in a wide circle.
About nightfall the hunters leave the camp and go to a spot near where they know there is a fox den. They usually have one or two "starting dogs" which know the region and soon can get up the fox. Then the other dogs are unleashed and the race is on. The hunters choose a high knoll where they can hear from all directions and which is as nearly as possible in the center of the circle being run by the fox and dogs.
If it is cold weather they build a bonfire. As they listen to the babel of baying they know the hounds well enough to tell how closely they are pressing the fox. They know which dog is in the lead and whether the hounds are confused in the trail. They know, also, if the dogs are "running fair," and woe be to one which cuts across the circle and tries to head the fox off. Hunters don't like a dog which won't "run fair."
The hunters may never even glimpse the fox nor the dogs after the chase begins, for the circle in which they run may be five or even ten miles around. If the dogs start pressing the fox too closely it will run into a hole. Then the hunters call the dogs off and the race is over. Often the race lasts for five or six hours, or even longer.
If the fox strays into an open space where the dogs are certain to catch it, the hunters try to call the hounds in with long blasts of their horns. It is inevitable that sometimes the dogs do catch the fox, but this is always regretted by the hunters.
In fox hunting, as in every other activity of the Ozark region, the modern day ushered in by good roads has been reflected. Instead of riding to camp on mules or horses, as they once did, most hunters drive up in their automobiles with their prized fox hounds occupying the back of the cars.
During the day at the annual encampments the entertainment includes a drag race, baseball game, horseshoe pitching and the like.
Drag Race in Morning.
The drag race is held early each morning for women and children who cannot attend the fox race at night. Before the dew has gone, a man leaves camp on horseback dragging behind him a wet wolf hide. He travels about five miles in a circle, returning to a point near the camp. Then he lifts the wolf hide as a signal that here the race ends. The young dogs are used in this race, for the hunters want to save their best hounds for the evening chase.
The dogs are unleashed on the trail made by the horseman. Away they go with many excited yelps and never stop until they have made the complete circuit and returned to the camp where the trail ends. The dog which makes the trip first has won the race.
The foxes in this section of the Ozarks where the hunts are being held at present are mostly red foxes. Other regions have more gray foxes. The red foxes are the fastest runners and also more timid. They run farther from the point at which the hunters are listening to the chase.
Another thing, when the dogs are chasing a red fox the hunters do not dare talk for fear of frightening it farther away. The gray foxes don't seem to mind if the hunters yell at the dogs occasionally, encouraging them, or spend the peaceful moonlit Ozark night telling of past exploits of their dogs—made more impressive by the accompaniment of deep baying in the distance.

Seeing Others' Viewpoint
The capacity to look on both sides of a question is the attribute of all fair-minded men and women. Stubbornness is usually the mark of the tyrant. The refusal to budge from a position once taken up, or to admit that there can be any other view than one's own, is mere stupidity.—Exchange.

That Brakes Are in Good Repair.

A great many collisions between automobiles and other vehicles, collisions which frequently have caused serious injuries and even deaths, would have been averted if brakes were kept in proper condition, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. "Many motorists drive from one end of the year to the other without paying the slightest attention to their brakes. Suddenly the brakes wear out, and in some emergency they fail to function," says Mr. Hayes.

The accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor club makes the following suggestions, particularly to motorists contemplating long tours:

Test Brakes Monthly.

They should be sure that their brakes are in good repair. At least once a month the rear wheels of the car should be jacked up and the brakes tried to see if they grip evenly. When the lining wears down to the rivet heads, brakes should be relined. The motorist will find it much more economical to have the brakes relined than to have to pay for damage to his own or some one else's car. Attention should be given to the emergency brake pawl to see that it does not become worn so that it will release accidentally. When a car is left in gear on a hill the front wheels should be cranked against the curb. The careful motorist will make certain that all cotter pins are replaced, especially those located in out-of-the-way places. One little pin out of place might cause a bad accident.

Stopping on Wet Pavement.

When stopping on a wet pavement, the skillful driver will be sure to close the throttle and apply the brake, leaving the clutch engaged, until just before the car is brought to a standstill. This will prevent locking of wheels, which is likely to cause skidding. The clutch should be left engaged when descending an ordinary hill, and if the hill is steep the driver should shift to second or even first gear, leaving the clutch engaged and the throttle closed. Keeping a car in low gear helps to keep it under control. On long hills the foot and emergency brakes should be used alternately to keep the car at a low rate of speed and to prevent burning out of the brake linings. Coasting down hill with the transmission gear in neutral is a dangerous practice, not indulged in by good drivers.

"But, above all," concludes Mr. Hayes, "brakes should be kept in perfect order."

Idaho Potato Is Newest

Thing in License Plates

A large Idaho potato is the newest thing in automobile license plates. The state has adopted a tag representing a big brown potato for distribution next year. Numbers and other official information on the plate are painted green. Use of the plates will commence January 1, 1928.

The secretary of state has ordered 120,000 sets of these plates and it is Idaho's intention to feature a different product or industry each year. The potato was selected to lead the field because of the national reputation this Idaho product has gained.

Officials predict other states will follow Idaho's lead and soon Missouri mules, Georgia peaches, Maryland oysters and whatnot may be seen rolling around the country on automobiles.

Rust Adds Heavy

Tax to Auto Cost

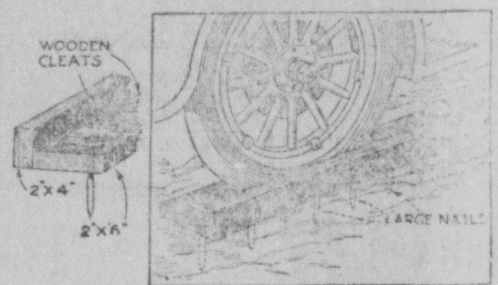

Corrosion, what is popularly known as rust, is costing American automobile owners 1 cent more for every gallon of gasoline they use, is the report of Dr. E. N. Speller, famous petroleum chemist, to the members of the American Chemical society at their Institute of Chemistry at State college, Pa.

"Estimates indicate that the annual cost of corrosion in the petroleum industry," he says, "is in excess of $1,000,000."

Chemists are trying to discover means to combat this costly evil in this and other industries.

Get Automobile Out of Mudhole by New Device

Ordinarily only one rear wheel gets stuck in a mudhole in the road. If the mud is very soft, even chains may not prove of much use. However, you will find that a length of board fitted with wooden cleats, and through which a number of long spikes have been driven, as shown in the illustration, will provide a path for the wheel out of the hole. Another board nailed along the edge will prevent the wheel slipping off. When not in use it can be strapped under the running board. —Popular Science Monthly.

Go to Machine Shop in Purchasing New Piston

Just because dealers for many makes of cars, even in cities, do not carry spare pistons in stock should not cause motorists worry.

Large machine shops and parts jobbers carry stock pistons which can be machined down until they fit perfectly. This makes it unnecessary for the dealer to carry spare pistons. Furthermore, it is a difficult matter to make a new piston fit a worn engine unless it is machined. Obviously, it is not practical for a dealer to carry pistons of all different sizes, where sizes vary by sixteenths of an inch.

If a new piston is needed, it should be turned down until it just matches the old one. Both pistons should weigh the same. The machine shop also would fit the wrist pin and cut the grooves for the exact number of rings needed.

Of course, if all new pistons are being installed because of wear, they should be oversize.

Paris Plans Testing Two Wireless Control Autos

Driverless automobiles, controlled by wireless waves, are to be demonstrated publicly at a summer festival in Paris.

Two of the cars have been equipped with a mechanism that is said to work well in practice and they are to be operated on the Colombes stadium track, where the 1924 Olympic games were held. Wireless control of an airplane has been tested by the French army, but little has been said of the experiments except that they were successful.

CALLES CLAIMS TO HAVE UPPER HAND, REVOLT AIMED

Against General Alvaro Obregon, His Rival For the Presidency—General Francisco Serrano and Thirteen of His Followers Fell Dead Before a Firing Squad in Morelos Monday—Serrano Was Former War Minister and Personal Friend of Obregon.

General Francisco Serrano, candidate for president of Mexico, and 13 lieutenants were executed after a summary court-martial in the state of Morelos, Tuesday.

Serrano, with General Arnulfo Gomez, another presidential aspirant was accused of having fomented a revolution to overthrow the P. Elias Calles government and prevent the election of General Alvaro Obregon as president to succeed Calles.

Federal forces at Torreón defeated a detachment of the Sixteenth battalion which joined the revolt. Lieutenant Colonel Manzanilla and other officers in the movement, were executed. The private soldiers said they did not know they were being held in revolt. They have been disarmed. Torreón is an important railroad center between El Paso and Mexico City in the state of Durango.

Announcement of the capture and execution of Serrano was made by General Jose Alvarez, chief of the presidential staff, and was contained in a statement to Mexican government officials Tuesday afternoon.

Federal troops are said to be in close pursuit of General Gomez. If captured he would be tried for treason. His execution is expected.

The Mexican government, under direction of President Calles, moved swiftly to crush the revolt according to information received from Mexico City. The arm of the government appeared to be directed especially at the leaders of the revolt, not so much attention being given to troops that were led from their barracks by the leaders.

The quick drive launched by the Mexican government to crush the revolution is meeting with unqualified success, according to word reaching Morelos Tuesday night.

A presidential warrant has been issued for General Gomez, who was charged particularly with revolutionary activities in Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

Reports given out by anti-Calles followers now refuting in Laredo to the effect that more than 3,000 troops had revolted in Mexico City and that President Calles was virtually a prisoner were accepted with great reserve. Statements that the entire federal garrisons of Monterrey, Puebla, Guadalajara and Jalisco had gone over to the revolution also were taken with reservation.

It was not denied in Mexican official quarters, however, that attempts had been made by the revolutionists to reach these garrisons. The Mexican government officials contended that uprisings of small detachments of troops quickly were quelled.

Serrano and Gomez both were candidates for the presidency on the "no reelection" ticket. They opposed General Obregon, former president of Mexico, who is a candidate on a platform that calls for a continuation of the policies of the Calles administration.

Serrano and Gomez had met frequently during the campaign which was begun several months ago and discussed joining forces, but neither would withdraw as a candidate.

Both Serrano and Gomez charged that the Calles government was partial toward the candidacy of General Obregon. They were said to have issued secret manifestos declaring a fair election was impossible and that a resort to arms was the only alternative.

They are said to have prevailed upon high army officers to desert the Calles government and swing the troops under them to the banner of revolution.

That government, according to word received was largely a failure.

Thursday night was the time set for the revolting troops to be withdrawn from their barracks and assemble under the banner of revolution. The movement passed unnoticed in Mexico for several hours, according to the story of Mexican officials, because army maneuvers had been under way on the outskirts of Mexico City Sunday.

Troops marching thru the city attracted little attention. It was not until they had marched many miles to the south that loyal army leaders were aware of the movement.

At dawn 2,000 loyal troops, with airplanes, were sent in pursuit.

Serrano and his band were overtaken near Cuernavaca, in the state of Morelos, on the road to Vera Cruz. After a brief skirmish, the Serrano forces were defeated. The trial and execution of Serrano and his officers followed.

Privates and officers of low ranks in the revolting troops are expected to escape with light punishment, according to word reaching Laredo. A wholesale execution of troops would arouse the C. R. O. M., the Mexican Federation of Labor.

Historic Clock Still

Runs After 312 Years

Peoria, Ill.—Three hundred and twelve years old and still running, a clock owned by James R. Harrison, Peoria, is claimed to be the oldest in the state in actual use.

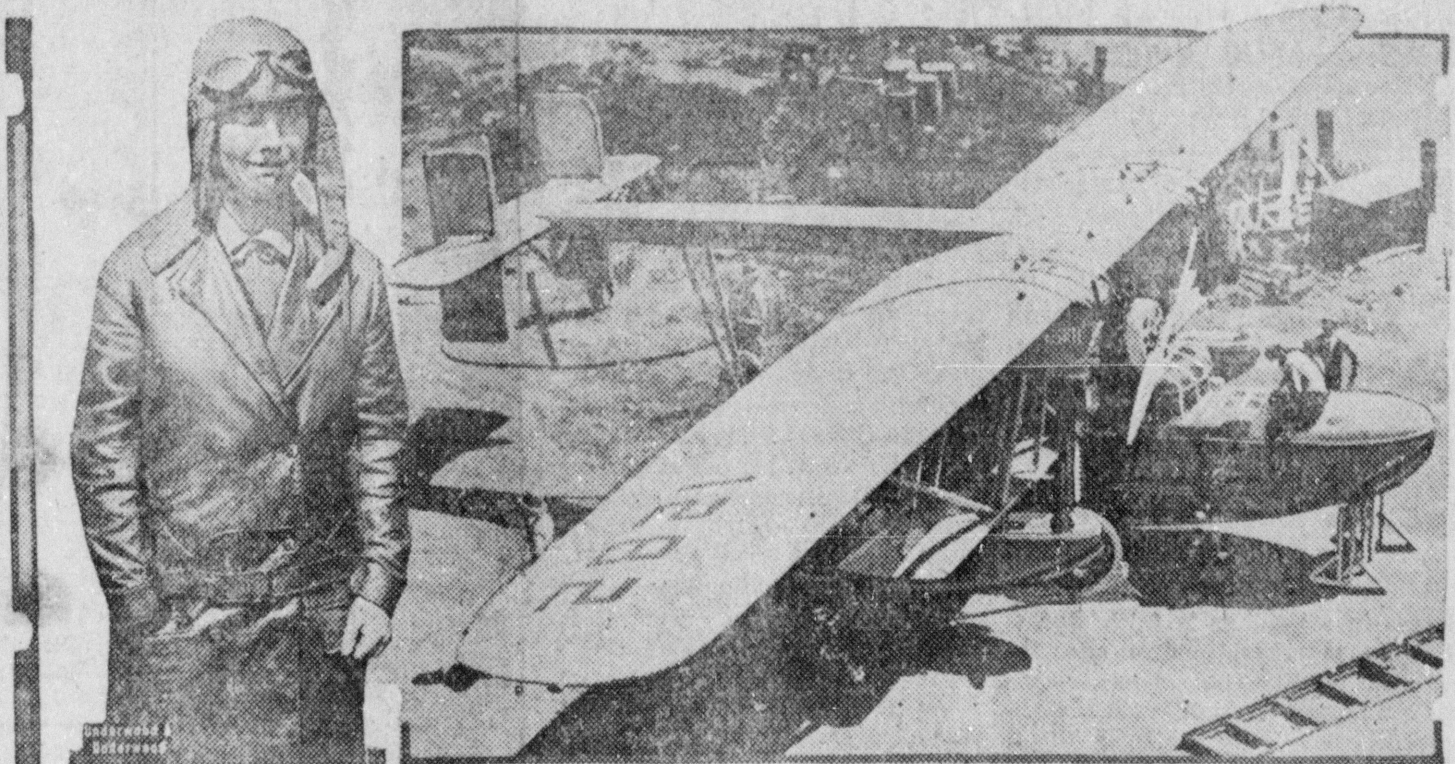

It was brought over from England before the War of 1812 and witnessed that war and the Civil war in the state of Virginia. During the latter struggle, it helped make history by being the hiding place of an eighteen-year-old Union sympathizer in a house surrounded by Confederates.

As the Confederates entered the house from both front and rear doors, the youth squeezed into the bottom of the old clock and escaped detection. However, as he made his escape from the clock he overturned it and nearly ruined its usefulness. Several parts were broken and the clock sat idle for several years. Later it was fixed up and has been running since.

French Politeness Includes Officials

Paris.—Just how polite one ought to be is debated, even in France.

A new discussion has been aroused by the ubiquitous tone of a form that hunters must sign if they wish a license in the cher department in central France.

"M. le prefect: I have the honor to solicit, through your kindness," etc., runs the preamble of the form. It concludes: "And I ask you to accept the expression of my great respect."

A Frenchman doesn't have to depend on an official's "kindness" for a hunting license, comment some critics, and he doesn't have to show any "great respect," but merely conventional, decent politeness.

Some suggest that the prospective hunter ought merely to write: "I, the undersigned, ask for a hunting license," etc.

Valuable Fertilizer

"Nitrated peat" is the fertilizer produced by an Italian chemist from explosives containing ammonium nitrate. The explosive is placed in a measured amount of water, which dissolves out the nitrate, and after a short time is decanted as a saturated solution. This is mixed with peat powder and evaporated. The product contains about 43 per cent of ammonium nitrate, and has been shown to have fertilizing value nearly equal to that of sodium nitrate.

British Birth Rate

Now Europe's Lowest

London.—The birth rate in England and Wales has now fallen below that of France. With the exception of Sweden, it is lowest of the principal European countries, according to the registrar general.

The birth rate for 1926 was 17.8 per 1,000 population. Excepting the rate of 17.7 in 1918, the last year of the war, which at that time was regarded as phenomenally low, that for 1926 is the lowest recorded since the establishment of civil registration in this country.

In view of the continued decline during the fiscal half of the current year, it is probable that the rate for 1927 will be lower than that for 1926.

FIRE DESTROYS HOSLER PACKING COMPANY PLANT

Loss $50,000--Was Partially Covered By Insurance--Built In 1886.

The Hosler Packing company, East High street, caught fire about four o'clock Wednesday morning and the main buildings of the plant were practically destroyed. The loss is estimated at $50,000, partially covered by insurance.

The fire alarm was sent in by Edward Blum, of Watt street, who discovered the buildings on fire when he arose shortly before four o'clock. He hurried to box 14, corner Main street and McCrea avenue and turned in the alarm. The department responded promptly, but before the department could lay their hose and throw water, the buildings were a mass of flames. Owing to their frame construction and being saturated with grease, the buildings were greedily licked up by the flames and soon all were gutted.

The fire, it is thought caught in the building where sausage is manufactured. The flames destroyed the roofs and interior of the brick building where the engine and boiler is located. Nothing is left of this building but the walls and smokestack. The frame building north of the engine room, and the roof over the cold storage plant were destroyed.

The last man at the plant was Edward McFarland, who left at eight o'clock. He closed and locked the plant and the only fire in the building was that under the boiler in the engine room, and this was low and was banked.

Defective wiring may have caused the conflagration, but an examination of the wiring by employees of the Ohio Utilities company, showed that the fuses had not been blown.

The owners of the plant, Charles H. Smith, of this city, and Harry P. Reed, of Ashville, have not been able to ascertain the real amount of their losses, and it will take several days before they will be able to get at it, as there is a considerable amount of meat in pickle and also some fresh meat in cold storage, the condition of which they will not be able to estimate until the burned buildings cool off, but from present appearance it is not thought that the meats in pickle and in cold storage have been damaged. If smoke has rendered it unfit for the market, these meats will be salvaged and taken over by the insurance companies.

The insurance agencies of Boyle & Johnson, T. P. Brown and Hummel & Plum carried the risks.

The plant was started back in 1886 by W. R. Hosler, who was then the owner of two meat markets. He conceived the idea of building a packing plant. Later on the company was incorporated and substantial buildings were constructed and these have been added to, so that the plant had become quite extensive at the time of his death.

The Hosler interests were later purchased by George K. Wright and Paul McGinnis. The plant is now owned by Charles H. Smith, of this city, and Harry P. Reed, of Ashville, Smith being the owner of two-thirds.

The fire did not destroy all of the buildings, as the wind was in the right direction and some were saved.

Farm Flock Is Most Important

Poultry Still Is Backbone of Industry on Specialized Farms.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In spite of the growing importance of the specialized poultry farm and the commercial farm flock the general farm flock is still the backbone of the poultry and egg industry from the standpoint of volume of production, according to Roy C. Potts, chief poultry marketing specialist, United States Department of Agriculture.

Small Farm Flocks.

The farm flock is rather small in size and is only a small part of the activity on the general farm, often not being considered a very important part. But in the aggregate, more than 80 per cent of the total production of poultry and eggs comes from just such flocks. Because of its minor importance the general farm flock is likely to be subjected to some neglect at times, to be less cared for at all times, and to consist of stock that has not been highly improved.

Specialized poultry farming, however, has been on the increase during the last six or seven years and continues to become more and more important. Specialization is mainly along the lines of egg production. On specialized farms poultry is the sole or main business and the owner is dependent upon it almost exclusively for his living. Generally the most up-to-date methods are employed and the most improved stock used.

Commercial Flocks.

The commercial farm flock, on the other hand, is not an exclusive enterprise on the farm but is one that is given more than usual attention in management and breeding. The poultry and egg crop of the country is produced by these three primarily different types of flocks or farms, the most important of which is still the general farm flock.

Alsike Clover Thrives on Sour or Wet Soils

On wet, undrained fields where the production of ordinary crops is difficult or impossible alsike clover can be made to produce large quantities of valuable feed, says F. L. Davis of the soils department of the Missouri College of Agriculture. Alsike clover will grow and produce well on sour land where the common red clover wouldn't make a stand. It is the one variety of clover that tolerates acid soil.

The most important reason for advocating alsike clover is that it will grow on sour or wet soils to which other crops are poorly adapted. The most important benefits derived from growing it on these soils are: (1) It does not feed the land down to such an extent that it lowers the production of the following crop, and (2) It makes one of the best green manures of the legumes.

Greater yields of crops are grown following alsike clover than other crops. An extended experiment at the Rhode Island experiment station comparing cabbages, mangels, rutabagas, buckwheat, potatoes, rye, corn, millet, oats, onions, red clover, squash, timothy, alsike, and red top showed that alsike was almost unsurpassed in this respect. Alsike clover produces almost as well as red clover and better than crimson or white.

Substantial Floor for

Any implement house is better than none—even the simplest, most inexpensive type pays for itself in a season or two. But from the standpoint of convenience it pays to build machine sheds, and a floor of some kind is a good feature.

If of wood, the floor should be of two-inch planks, laid on joists or beams, which in turn should be kept off the ground by flat stones or concrete blocks. Such floors last quite long, especially if there be ventilation beneath them to keep the wood dry.

Concrete makes the ideal floor for a machine shed, of course. It can be laid right on the ground, if it is well drained.

Agricultural Notes

Crop rotation is the surest method of weed control.

Save the straw. It will help to take the place of hay this fall and winter.

Canada field peas probably make the heaviest cover—and to stop washing they are hard to beat.

In silo building, the first and most important consideration is its size in relation to amount of stock kept.

Early planted corn may not grow much larger than later planting, but the early planting will mature first.

Well-rotted barnyard manure is a good fertilizer for the garden. It should be applied at the rate of 20 tons to an acre and should be worked into the soil.

At least two cultivations for soy beans which have been planted solid and at least three cultivations for those grown in rows will aid in increasing yields and profits.

Dangerous When Aroused

The hippopotamus is naturally timid, though subject to fits of panic or rage. When wounded or enraged this animal is regarded by sportsmen as perhaps the most dangerous beast to be encountered.

Right or Wrong Direction?

There is no use for us to ask anxiously if our power is increasing. There is no doubt of that. The only question is whether it is increasingly good or increasingly evil.—Amos R. Wells.

BROKE; BUT HAPPY

Almost 1000 Legionnaires Reach New York From Paris.

New York, Oct. 3.—(UP).—"Broke," but happy, 780 Legionnaires arrived from Antwerp today in the steamer Pennlyand. Some of the Legionnaires wore $5 bills tied around their necks in a comic gesture of safeguarding their last funds. Stewards on the boat went without tips on the return trip, several of the men said.

Circular Front Skirt Is Feature of Dress

The cut of a dress must give the effect of being simple if it is to be smart, says the Woman's Home Companion. The dress illustrated achieves this simple yet individual effect by means of an unusual yoke in the blouse and a skirt which is cut circular in front and plain at the back. The yoke follows the line of the collar in the front and ends in a point at the back from which hangs a little diamond-shaped tab. Deep revers on the collar add the finishing touch to this unusually smart dress. This design is suited to such fabrics as wool georgette, wool voile, crepe faille and lightweight kasha.

Velvet the Outstanding Fabric of Autumn Mode

It is beyond question that velvet is the outstanding fabric of the fall mode. The Paris openings, writes a Paris correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, have favored it above all other materials and this predilection has been shared by both modiste and couturier. Velvet, as we know it today, is a lightweight, supple, soft stuff that is beautifully colored and may be softly draped, fine tucked or shirred; molded to the head or cemented together to make a becomingly soft brim. In fact, it will do practically anything that is asked of it. There are also lovely stitched velvets, gold embroidered velvets and pantomimic velvets uniquely embossed into effects resembling flowers. There is no color that is not represented in dozens of shades, and no possible combination of colors that have not been tried out. For summer wear the colors were softly vivid, bright, but mellowed by a silvery sheen; but as the present season glides into the fall the chapeaux take on the shades of autumn—ruby reds, woody browns and gray-tinted blues like the misty November days. But never for a moment has the popularity of black and beige waned; they are the two distinctively smart colors and will still be of paramount importance.

Other soft, pliable fall hat materials are grosgrain and faille taffeta. These fabrics are made into exquisite little models of the sports variety and are exceedingly smart, but lack the softness and drapability of velvet. However, grosgrain comes into its own as a trim on velvet and felt hats in the form of bands, bows, brim edges, and is frequently combined with velvet in toques and cloches in the form of inserts, brim facings, or uniquely shaped geometric designs of various colors. Incidentally, trimmings in the present mode are more or less negligible.

Half Fur Coat Is Among Novelties of Season

Half a fur coat not only is better than half a loaf, but in many cases it is far more fashionable than a full coat. That is, if the coat is denuded of no more than its collar. Some of the smartest fur garments now are made without collars and this lack is supplemented by large and expensive stoles or scarfs composed of two or more skins of beaver, fox, fisher or sable. The new moleskin coats are in conventional designs to the waist, but from the waist to hem the skins are worked in the most extraordinary lightning flash and chevron designs.

French Shoe Vamps Are Longer; Like Yank Toes

The short-vamped shoes which French women have preferred for generations are gradually being supplanted by the American toed variety. Less pointed than new English lasts, but much rounder than they used to be, are the newest French shoes. Vamps gradually are lengthening, and French women's feet begin to look more like those of their American visitors.

Dancing Frock

A frock that almost dances by itself is made of white taffeta with a wide hem lined with bright green ribbon which shows through faintly. It is slashed at one side to disclose the ribbon, and there is a touch of it at the irregular corsage, and a large bow in the back.

NICE MYSTERY FOR SHERLOCK

Sleuths Unable to Find How Money Placed In Ship's Safe Disappeared.

New York, Oct. 3.—(UP).—A mystery that might baffle Sherlock Holmes was revealed today when the Atlantic transport liner Minnetonka docked with 272 passengers from London and Cherbourg.

Somewhere between London and New York a diamond necklace, other jewelry and money valued at $2500, disappeared from the ship's safe.

The safe had not been burglarized. The lock was triple safeguarded and the purser and his two assistants, the only ones who had access to it, were regarded as beyond suspicion. The

The losers were Mrs. Robert Gregory and Stanley K. Gage, a real estate broker, both of Chicago.

Had Three Keys

Today when the safe was opened, all the envelopes were there except Gage's and Mrs. Gregory's.

The safe had three keys. Two were required to open it. The other gave access to a strong box in which the two keys were kept. At night the purser kept the strong box always in his possession. By day it was in a drawer to which no one but his assistants possibly could have access.

The only theory detectives could find at all tenable was that the envelopes never reached the interior of the safe, but that some clever thief had switched them while the owners were making their deposits. There was nothing to support that theory, however, and the two passengers made their deposits on different days.

OHIO WELFARE CONFERENCE

The Ohio Welfare Conference is bringing national leaders in social work to its annual meeting in Canton, October 11-14. Dr. John A. Lapp, Director of Social Action of the National Catholic Council and 1926-27 President of the National Conference of Social Work, appears on one of the evening programs. John S. Bradway, secretary of the National Association of Legal Aid Associations, speaks at a dinner meeting and Mr. Frank J. Bruno, of St. Louis, head of the department of sociology of Washington University, gives one of the courses of study that precede the Conference. Among the other instructors are Linton B. Swift of New York, Paul T. Beisser of Baltimore, Paul Benjamin of Louisville, Helen L. Myrick of Chicago, and Dr. E. A. North, Cincinnati.

Almost every county of Ohio will have representatives at the conference. Two hundred of the delegates will be going to school for two days before the formal session opens, giving intensive study to particular subjects bearing on the work they are doing.

Pickaway County will be represented at the conference by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mowery.

Initiative Bill For Chiropractic Board.

Dr. C. E. Shilling of Willard, Ohio, Secretary of the Ohio State Chiropractic Society and Hon. B. Franklin Lear, Member of the House of Representatives in the Eighty-seventh General Assembly called upon local Chiropractors to complete arrangements for the initiated Chiropractic Bill to be voted on November 8.

"Chiropractic has fought, and won its way in 29 states of the Union, which have legally authorized and permitted the Chiropractors to practice their art of healing, and to conduct their affairs by men within their own ranks. The people of California settled this question by referendum Contest with a substantial majority of three hundred thousand.

Ohio has for some time been a great battle ground and each year the Chiropractors have gained many new friends and now they have succeeded in getting the required number of signatures necessary to enable them to place upon the ballot for the people's decision, the question "Shall the Chiropractors be given a separate board of their own, without and additional expense to the taxpayers?" 1 4 1t

Show Smart Lines
in Autumn Frocks*Season's Innovations in Fall
Wear Make Latest Styles
Most Flattering.Of primary interest to the woman of fashion this fall is the changed silhouette, which, so long predicted and prophesied, at last seems an accomplished fact. Whether it is a natural reaction against too severe and simple styles or whether the Parisian designers have found in the recent boyish modes not enough scope for the exercise of their talents it is hard to say. One thing is certain writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, elegance, old-time elegance, has returned, and the first departure from recently accepted standards of rigid simplicity is in the matter of line. Skirts, in fact, are at last longer. Such couturiers as Poiret, Molyneux, Drecoll, Jane Regny, Cyber and others of like note have added actual length to the hemline. This additional length, however, is not more than one inch; but when knees have been so generally exposed to view, even an inch is something. Then there is the irregular hemline, which is possibly a more interesting development.
The conventionally short skirt is retained, but an appearance of length is produced by pointed sides, fluttering panels, low descending drapes, longer backs, and, in the case of evening gowns, actual trains. Molyneux shows these effects in addition to the added inch of actual length noted above.
With him in the movement for the irregular hem are various great designers, such as Worth, Patou, Premet, Champanne, Miller Seours and some five or six others.Dipped hemlines were really originated as early as last spring by Lou-iseboulanger, whose familiar model of molded bodice and skirt that was short in front and dropped gradually at the sides to full length in back, has been popular all summer. In the printed chiffon version which this house originated, the model is still appearing at the smartest resorts in Europe. Since it is in reality a semi-period frock with rather full skirt, it will undoubtedly continue its existence during the winter, being sponsored by the young girl and that type of slim matron who is at her best in a gown of period influence. This sort of gown has received more prominence than usual in the fall showings, Agnes, Redfern, Lenief, Bishop and others rather making a feature of it.All frocks, even daytime ones, show added fullness in the skirt. The circular line is favored, generally at front and sometimes at the sides.Draping Is Prominent.An immense amount of draping appears. It is one of the most practical and effective features of the mode, for it has such infinite possibilities. It is the plump woman's kindest friend, since a mass of draping cleverly manipulated conceals bulging contours and gives long and slenderizing lines as no other fabric treatment can. It is strikingly graceful, too, and in the lustrous satins and new transparent velvets it effects a self-trim unsurpassed for elegance and beauty.The tiered effect so much seen this summer with printed front continues in great variety. Patou makes it in circular fashion, Champanne in diagonal. Molyneux uses double tiers which suggest a tunic. In fact, theDull and Shiny Satin Combined in New Dress for Fall.tunic silhouette itself is one of the newest notes for fall.The bloused bodice above a snug hipline continues, as does the bolero.
The latter is very versatile. It may end just below the shoulder blades or drop to any length from there to the hips. It is an excellent device for concealing defects of figure. Along with the tendency to lengthen the skirt at the hem, appears a similar tendency to length at the hip, this achieved naturally enough by raising the waistline. Back to normality has been the cry of the waistliners for some time, but, in spite of much propaganda, the mooted line remained fixed somewhere around the hips. Today the very low line remains, the hip-line also; but there is a movement on the part of some important houses to raise the waistline, if not to normal at least tonearly normal. Nicole Groult goes the whole way and shows models with waistlines where they were before women adopted the pencil-line silhouette.Necklines are softer and more becoming than they have been for some years. Lelong continues the collarless effect, but adds fabric bows as a trim.
The soft turn-back collar, which gives a flattering neckline for the older woman or for the very thin woman, is sponsored by Chanel. Even high collars appear on some models. Talbot uses them, as do Dancet and Drecoll.
Many lace collars and neckbands finish dresses of black transparent velvet. Sometimes a navy dress has an inset yoke of flesh or salmon. One smart model of black crepe had a yoke and sleeves of white crepe. The same type of gown was also seen in black and salmon. When one takes into account the vast amount of costume jewelry sponsored it would seem as if, between collars and necklaces, neck lines were destined to be very feminine and flattering this winter.
This is news that will mean little to the flapper or the debutante, but for the older woman it is priceless.Jumper Still Popular.In sports clothes the jumper continues to be the high note. It appears in jerseys and novelty woolsens with especial emphasis on the Rodier weaves. The lines of metal threadSeason's Innovations in Design Feature Satin Frock.woven into the dark fabric are very smart and distinctive. The main difference in styling the jumper this year is in the matter of length. The jumper has grown longer, not long enough to be awkward, just long enough to allow a becoming belt. Some houses are showing a three-quarter length jumper.
Talbot and Regny among these, but it is not probable that the more becoming shorter length will be displaced in popular favor. Sweaters, of course, still hold their place in sports wear, the high-necked model shown by Regny and Drecoll introducing a new note.The elegance movement has made itself felt nowhere more visibly than in the realm of fabrics. This promises to be a winter when velvet will predominate. It is shown in printed patterns for sports wear. It makes charming frocks, evening gowns, coats, evening wraps, handbags and hats. In fact, some houses show a distinct tendency to match or harmonize dress and hat materials, as, for instance, a lustrous soleil with broadcloth costume and with the velvet dress a hat of self fabric. Although various types of velvet are shown, the transparent variety is distinctly in first place.Crepe Satin for Evening.Crepe satin is also considered highly important for both daytime and evening wear. The present mode of applying bands of the dull side of the fabric to the lustrous inside as a trim, and vice versa, is undoubtedly effective. This really charming material seems likely to have a longer run for evening than for daytime, because its softness lends itself perfectly to draping and its luster and the beautiful shades in which it appears are too becoming for women to cast it aside quickly.The compact is always with us but, at least the designers are introducing changes on the old forms. Now, a most literary-looking case contains powder and rouge. The container take the form of a small book bound in calf or morocco, in green, black or maroon. The design worked out on the leather is of gold in Spanish effect.
This is a welcome relief from the over-fasting round metal vanity.Black satin is promised a tremendous vogue for fall and this means pearl jewelry, for the somber hue needs the luster of pearls to relieve it.
Pearls are appearing in grape cluster designs of white or deep pink. They are worn as earring, hat ornaments, occasionally as bracelet charms and most often as a drop at the end of a silver or near-platinum chain.Street, Walking Shoes*Now Have Lower HeelsIf you are wondering whether the heels on your new street shoes are high enough—remember that heels are getting lower. All new street and walking shoes are forsaking the ultra-high heel and taking on a more wearable, but still shapely heel which combines the qualities of grace and comfort.St. RitaSt. Rita was canonized in 1900. She is called the saint of the impossible, and is generally pictured holding a bunch of roses. When she was dying, it was in the winter, and cold, and she asked one of the nuns at her bedside to go to the garden to pick her a rose. Those about her bed thought that her mind was wandering, but one of them, as a matter of form, went to the garden, and, behold, on one of the bushes was a beautiful rose.BREAD PRICES REDUCEDWallace Twin Loaf 10c

CIRCLEVILLE'S COUNTRY CLUB COMING ALONG

Projectors Seem Very Much Encouraged--To Hold Meeting Next Week.

A clay model of the Country Club grounds will be placed on exhibition in the show window of the Ohio Utilities company Wednesday evening showing the proposed location of the club grounds.

The grounds are plenty large enough for a nine hole golf course, the same as Chillicothe and going twice around this course gives you the standard distance of 18 holes.

Besides, the grounds are located beautifully, as a practice ground can also be placed to give you a little warming up before starting out. Tennis and Roque courts will be placed on the grounds and dancing will be given following social affairs. It is something this city has lacked for an age. Other towns of this size have elegant country clubs and they are maintained in first class manner.

The projectors of the Country Club will, no doubt, exercise the option they have on the Emanuel Valentine farm, as a great deal of interest has been taken in the project and the committee is very much enthused and encouraged by the reception they have been given by the public.

The club is not operated for profit. If the association meets expenses, that is all they will care for, as it is a project purely for pleasure, for the entertainment of members, their families and friends.

Effort to "Pin Down" President a Failure
Nicholas Murray Butler's attempt to "smoke out" President Coolidge on a third term did not succeed, but did revive a story told last summer while Mr. Coolidge was at the White Pine camp in the Adirondacks.

According to the gossips the President was out on one of the lakes fishing when the sky became overcast. The boatman remarked that the dark clouds indicated rain. Mr. Coolidge made no comment. After a while the sky grew blacker and the boatman again remarked that he guessed it was going to rain. Still Mr. Coolidge was silent.

Then came the distant roar of thunder. A sharp flash of lightning was followed by another sharp peal of thunder. Rain began to fall. "Well," said the President's companion, questioning, "I guess we're going to get that shower."

The President looked at him and demanded sharply: "What are you trying to do, pin me down?"—Los Angeles Times.

Earth Still Young
The earth still is just a kid, remarks Capper's Weekly. It has lived only one-half-millionth of its allotted existence, if the scientists haven't slipped in their figures. But, for that matter, we can't even imagine what life upon it would be like one hundred hence.

SECRET CLOSET OF STORY FAME MAY BE DISCLOSED

House Where Herman Melville Wrote
"Moby Dick" May Be Restored.

Pittsfield, Mass.—"Arrowhead," the old mansion in which Herman Melville lived 13 years and where he wrote his famed whaling story, "Moby Dick," may yield the truth about its secret closet.

The old house on Holmes road, now near dilapidation, has passed from the hands of the author's kindred. The new owners and their plans have not been disclosed, but there is a possibility that the old structure may be restored and preserved. It is said.

It is in the mammoth old chimney of the house that the secret closet may be found. The chimney is 12 feet square at its base and dominates the house.

Melville himself mentions the mysterious closet in his "I and My Chimney." He speaks of the chimney and himself as "two gray-haired old smokers," both "old settlers."

He termed the chimney the bully of the establishment. It was built of brick and stone and was placed in the very center of the house. On all four sides are hearths. Built into it are numerous small closets and cupboards.

Melville colors the suggestion of a hidden closet and possibly hidden treasure with a reference to a possibly fictitious merchant in the Indian trade once making his abode within its walls.

In writing of the closet, Melville said:
"At the second landing, midway up the chimney, is a mysterious door, entering into a mysterious closet; and here I keep mysterious cordials, of a choice, mysterious flavor, made by the constant maturing and subtle ripening of the chimney's gentle heat, distilled through that mass of masonry. Better for wines is it than voyages to the Indies; my chimney itself a tropic."

Local historians say the house was built in 1780 by Capt. David Bush, who made a famous inn of it for years. Melville acquired the mansion and began living there in 1851. William B. Morewood, who married a niece of the author, last occupied the old house. It was put up for sale several months ago.

Saved by Fast Clock
Two hundred Buenos Aires workmen owe their lives to the fact that a clock was five minutes fast. They fled out of the drug manufacturing establishment where they were working five minutes before they were supposed to. The last man had hardly got out when a terrific explosion wrecked the building almost completely.

Ants live from eight to ten years, as a general rule, although specimens in captivity have been known to reach the age of fifteen.

BLACKSTONE PERFORMANCE PLEASES ALL

A capacity audience greeted Blackstone, the magician, at the Grand opera house Tuesday evening and from start to finish he held the great crowd in almost breathless suspense, and there were many expressions of appreciation and pleasure at his mystifying performance.

His tricks were many and varied and demonstrated clearly that Blackstone has no superior. He can do all that other great artists in this line have ever been able to perform and withal, his show is clean well worth the time and money it takes to see it.

All who were fortunate enough to be present Monday or Tuesday nights are loud in their praises of Blackstone.

Tonight will witness the last performance in this city and if you have not seen him, don't fail to attend, as a rich treat is in store for you.

Many of those who attended Monday night were on hand for the performance on Tuesday night, and will also be present tonight at the last show.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mrs. E. M. Huff, of East Franklin street, attended the wedding of her friend, Miss Madeline Mercedes Barr, daughter of Mrs. William E. Barr of 480 South Seventeenth street, Columbus, to Aloys C. Beichleman, of 458 South Whittier street, which was celebrated at Holy Cross church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, Rev. P. C. Schneider officiating.

Lawrence Heiskell, son of Clifford P. Heiskell and Miss Anna Graves were married at the bride's home last Saturday evening in Madison, Wisconsin. Among those who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunlap and daughter, Margaret, of Williamsport, and Miss Emily Yates, Clifford P. Heiskell and son, John Heiskell, of this city.

About 55 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Gibson near Williamsport, Sunday, October 2, in honor of the fifty-first birthday anniversary of Mr. Frank McAfee, father of Mrs. Gibson. Those who enjoyed the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy McAfee and daughters; Helen, Audrey, Jessie and Margaret, of Marion; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Myers and daughters, Ruth Anna and Alice; Mr. Richard McClintock, of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. I. D. McAfee and sons, Garnold Denton and James, Mrs. Susan McAfee, Mrs. Lawrence Miller and sons Stanley, Donald, Robert and Fred, of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. William Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. George Schaefer and son, Billy, Miss Georgia Hall, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. William Reid of Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Friece, of Chillicothe; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Crawford and grandchildren; Ruth, Annabel, Mrs. Hattie Riggins and son, Loren, of Robtown; Mr. and Mrs. Merle McAfee and son Darl, of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank McAfee, Mr. and Mrs. Millard McAfee, of Meade. POOR LIGHT PUTS STRAIN ON NERVES

The average American home is only half lighted, asserts Miss Helen G. McKinlay of Harrison, N. J.

Miss McKinlay is one of a score of engineers and eye conservationists carrying on a nation-wide investigation of light, sight and safety under the direction of Richard E. Simpson of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. She is studying the effect of inadequate lighting in the home.

Sufficient lights, all shaded, and a center light in each room are the essentials of a well-lighted home, declares Miss McKinlay. She sees no harm in reading in bed providing the light is good.

"It takes 12 per cent of the nervous energy the body generates to see under normal conditions," she explains. "When there is poor lighting 50 per cent is required."

"Every well-lighted kitchen should have lights above the sink. If you work and can't see well, your irritability is increased. Why lose so much nervous energy in the kitchen?"

Queer Time Measurement
In the mountains of Montenegro, distance is often measured by the time it takes to smoke a cigarette. They are moderate and presume that a normal cigarette smoker lights one every half hour or so. Consequently, a cigarette's walk would be from one and a half to two miles.

AMUSEMENTS

Taking New York city life—the life of the idle rich, usually regarded as a tinselled paradise and delving beneath it into grim tragedies and desperate longings that encompass the slaves of gold, Edmund Goulding, famous author and screen director, has given the world one of the most poignant dramas in modern times.

This is "Women Love Diamonds," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production now playing at the Met theater.

It is a terrific drama—its intensity amazes, and thru it runs a love story of remarkable beauty. It is set in the home of the very rich; it exposes their foibles and their shame—it is a striking exposition of the torment of human souls under shackles of silk; it is a story that will long live.

But not only it is a triumph for the author and producer—it is no less a triumph for a very remarkable little actress, Pauline Starks. Owen Moore plays the hero, and offers a remarkable cleancut characterization, with much whimsical humor. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., is acceptable as a young millionaire, while Lionel Barrymore, in the "heavy" role, achieves a veritable triumph.

The well balanced cast includes Cissy Fitzgerald, Gwen Lee, Dorothy Phillips, George Cooper, Constance Howard, Carol Wines and others.

Heavily Jeweled Mummy

Among recent important discoveries, in Egypt, according to an Egyptian correspondent, is the finding in Egypt's western desert of a tomb containing the mummy of a woman, presumably a queen, covered with jewels of priceless description. Among these are 18 bracelets of gold and silver, five necklaces in brilliants on her neck and a superhead crown studded with brilliants. Near the body were found other necklaces in sapphires and brilliants, also a statuette beautifully carved from porphyry. Hieroglyphics on the tomb indicate that the body is that of a princess who lived 3,000 years ago, but it has not been possible yet to establish to what dynasty she belonged.

“FORGET YOUR SEX”

Detroit, Mich.—Forget your sex when you enter the business world if you would be successful was the advice given to women in an address here by Edith Mae Cummings, who in four years rose from a telephone switch-board to be a millionaire real estate operator and one of the big business women of America.

“Sexlessness in business is the keynote of a woman’s success,” said Miss Cummings at the opening of the Edith Mae Cummings School of Business Science for women. “A successful business career is built on brains and nothing else. Mind knows no sex and in business, women must meet men on equal terms. Beauty and feminine allurements are not business assets. The lipstick and the rouge pot mean nothing in cold industrial competition. Business success never yet was founded on sex appeal.

“To women embarking upon a business career, my advice is to analyze yourselves and select the vocation for which you are best fitted. This is all important. We cannot all be great as salesmen, merchants, or financiers. But there is something that all of us can do better than we can do anything else. Forget the old tradition of a ‘weaker sex’ and waive all claims to masculine gallantry. Remember that your fight for success is to be a sexless fight with men and women as your rivals and depend entirely upon your own intellect and force of character. Personal ambition and hard work will do the rest. Genuine ability is bound to get to the top.”

In order to conserve the moisture in the soil around newly planted trees the ground may be mulched, says the new tree-planting book the American Tree association, Washington, sends out. 2000 Miles Farther in 25,243 Less Minutes

THE public thinks of such trains as the “Century” and the “Chief” as being fast. They are.

But it requires over 65,600 minutes for 45 of the world’s fastest trains, going in all directions from Chicago, to run 40,000 miles. And these trains get MANY fresh engines, at regular intervals, in order to make this remarkable speed.

Contrast this phenomenal performance of three Auburn fully equipped STOCK cars that run 42,000 miles in less than 40,435 minutes (exact duplicates in every way of the Auburn cars every Auburn dealer has).

Here is an amazing record of performance, endurance and value never before approached, let alone equalled.

No change of engines for these three stock cars. No favoritism, but the hardest kind of driving, continuously, under American Automobile Association official supervision, on the Atlantic City Speedway.

To even RUN 42,000 continuous miles, at much less speed, would be a tremendous tribute to ANY automobile’s efficiency and stamina. That is farther mileage and infinitely harder punishment than any three average private owners impose on their cars in a whole year’s service.

But no other car has ever survived an official test of this magnitude and distance. Three Auburn cars DID it, at speeds that overwhelmingly break all records.

Not only that, but we KNOW that Auburn cars can go much farther at even FASTER speed.

The purpose of this test was not speed, altho that is sensational and establishes Auburn supreme in this respect.

The real purpose was to prove in the acid test of this proving grounds that Auburn cars ARE better designed, better built, more efficient, and more durable.

In these highly competitive days of extravagant claims, the public is entitled to the unvarnished truth about the relative value of motor cars.

It is what a car DOES and not what its builders SAY that determines VALUE.

Drive an Auburn Straight Eight and if it does not sell itself you will not be asked to buy.

Fall Service Saves Spring Bills

MANY a car owner needlessly depreciates the value of his car by neglecting necessary repairs and replacements at this time of year. After a summer's driving every car should be thoroughly inspected and put into condition for winter use. The car that needs a dollar's worth of service now, and doesn't get it, will likely need ten dollar's worth in the spring.

Our shop is efficiently manned and equipped, and we are prepared to render real service at the lowest prices consistent with full responsibility for our work. It will cost you nothing to investigate—drive the car in and let us look it over.

RETAIN LOVE OF HUNTING FOXES

Ozark Pioneers Train Their Dogs Not to Harm Small Animals.

Springfield, Mo.—Fox hunting, picturesque sport of the pioneers, is enlisting new devotees in the Ozarks through annual summer fox hunts and picnics being held by several county fox hunters' associations.

Choosing a pleasant camping ground on a wooded hillside near a spring in the midst of territory known to harbor foxes, the hunters usually devote four days to the meet.

Recently the Dade county Fox Hunters' association went into camp and later the Cedar county hunters gathered for the annual event.

Fox hunting always has been followed by lovers of the outdoor sports of the Ozarks, who kept from one to half a dozen of the ungainly foxhounds, which they prized highly and at which many shafts of wit have been aimed in the past by visitors to the hills. It is only in the last eight or ten years, however, that the hunters have fallen into the universal organization habit so far as to form associations with duly elected officers.

Fox hunting really is fox chasing—with the hope that the prey will not be caught. Strange as it may seem, fox hunters are the best of friends the little animals have. They want the foxes protected that their dogs may have many chases in the future.

Unlike fox hunting in England, where the country is not so covered by underbrush and wooded hills, the Ozark sport is not carried on by following the hounds on horseback. Instead, the hunters get their thrills by listening to the tumultuous chorus of baying dogs racing after the fox as it moves in a wide circle.

About nightfall the hunters leave the camp and go to a spot near where they know there is a fox den. They usually have one or two "starting dogs" which know the region and soon can get up the fox. Then the other dogs are unleashed and the race is on. The hunters choose a high knoll where they can hear from all directions and which is as neatly as possible in the center of the circle being run by the fox and dogs.

If it is cold weather they build a bonfire. As they listen to the babel of baying they know the hounds well enough to tell how closely they are pressing the fox. They know which dog is in the lead and whether the hounds are confused in the trail. They know, also, if the dogs are "running fair," and woe be to one which cuts across the circle and tries to head the fox off. Hunters don't like a dog which won't "run fair."

The hunters may never even glimpse the fox nor the dogs after the chase begins, for the circle in which they run may be five or even ten miles around. If the dogs start pressing the fox too closely it will run into a hole. Then the hunters call the dogs off and the race is over. Often the race lasts for five or six hours, or even longer.

If the fox strays into an open space where the dogs are certain to catch it, the hunters try to call the hounds in with long blasts of their horns. It is inevitable that sometimes the dogs do catch the fox, but this is always regretted by the hunters.

In fox hunting, as in every other activity of the Ozark region, the modern day ushered in by good roads has been reflected. Instead of riding to camp on mules or horses, as they once did, most hunters drive up in their automobiles with their prized fox hounds occupying the back of the cars.

During the day at the annual encampments the entertainment includes a drag race, baseball game, horseshoe pitching and the like.

Drag Race in Morning.

The drag race is held early each morning for women and children who cannot attend the fox race at night. Before the dew has gone, a man leaves camp on horseback dragging behind him a wet wolf hide. He travels about five miles in a circle, returning to a point near the camp. Then he lifts the wolf hide as a signal that here the race ends. The young dogs are used in this race, for the hunters want to save their best hounds for the evening chase.

The dogs are unleashed on the trail made by the horseman. Away they go with many excited yelps and never stop until they have made the complete circuit and returned to the camp where the trail ends. The dog which makes the trip first has won the race.

The foxes in this section of the Ozarks where the hunts are being held at present are mostly red foxes. Other regions have more gray foxes. The red foxes are the fastest runners and also more timid. They run farther from the point at which the hunters are listening to the chase.

Another thing, when the dogs are chasing a red fox the hunters do not dare talk for fear of frightening it farther away. The gray foxes don't seem to mind if the hunters yell at the dogs occasionally, encouraging them, or spend the peaceful moonlit Ozark night telling of past exploits of their dogs—made more impressive by the accompaniment of deep baying in the distance.

Seeing Others' Viewpoint
The capacity to look on both sides of a question is the attribute of all fair-minded men and women. Stubbornness is usually the mark of the tyrant. The refusal to budge from a position once taken up, or to admit that there can be any other view than one's own, is mere stupidity.—Exchange.

COLLISIONS CAN BE PREVENTED

Motorists Should Be Positive That Brakes Are in Good Repair.

A great many collisions between automobiles and other vehicles, collisions which frequently have caused serious injuries and even deaths, would have been averted if brakes were kept in proper condition, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. "Many motorists drive from one end of the year to the other without paying the slightest attention to their brakes. Suddenly the brakes wear out, and in some emergency they fail to function," says Mr. Hayes.

The accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor club makes the following suggestions, particularly to motorists contemplating long tours:

Test Brakes Monthly.

They should be sure that their brakes are in good repair. At least once a month the rear wheels of the car should be jacked up and the brakes tried to see if they grip evenly. When the lining wears down to the rivet heads, brakes should be relined. The motorist will find it much more economical to have the brakes relined than to have to pay for damage to his own or some one else's car. Attention should be given to the emergency brake pawl to see that it does not become worn so that it will release accidentally. When a car is left in gear on a hill the front wheels should be cramped against the curb. The careful motorist will make certain that all cotter pins are replaced, especially those located in out-of-the-way places. One little pin out of place might cause a bad accident.

Stopping on Wet Pavement.

When stopping on a wet pavement, the skillful driver will be sure to close the throttle and apply the brake, leaving the clutch engaged, until just before the car is brought to a standstill. This will prevent locking of wheels, which is likely to cause skidding. The clutch should be left engaged when descending an ordinary hill, and if the hill is steep the driver should shift to second or even first gear, leaving the clutch engaged and the throttle closed. Keeping a car in low gear helps to keep it under control. On long hills the foot and emergency brakes should be used alternately to keep the car at a low rate of speed and to prevent burning out of the brake linings. Coasting down hill with the transmission gear in neutral is a dangerous practice, not indulged in by good drivers.

"But, above all," concludes Mr. Hayes, "brakes should be kept in perfect order."

Idaho Potato Is Newest Thing in License Plates

A large Idaho potato is the newest thing in automobile license plates. The state has adopted a tag representing a big brown potato for distribution next year. Numbers and other official information on the plate are painted green. Use of the plates will commence January 1, 1928.

The secretary of state has ordered 120,000 sets of these plates and it is Idaho's intention to feature a different product or industry each year. The potato was selected to lead the field because of the national reputation this Idaho product has gained.

Officials predict other states will follow Idaho's lead and soon Missouri mules, Georgia peaches, Maryland oysters and whatnot may be seen rolling around the country on automobiles.

Rust Adds Heavy Tax to Auto Cost

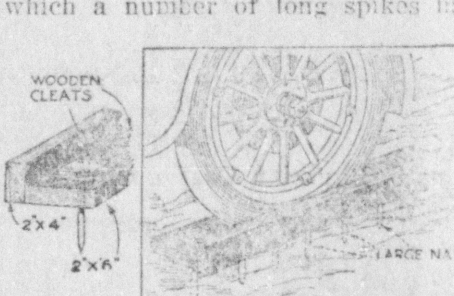

Corrosion, what is popularly known as rust, is costing American automobile owners 1 cent more for every gallon of gasoline they use, is the report of Dr. F. N. Speller, famous petroleum chemist, to the members of the American Chemical society at their Institute of Chemistry at State college, Pa.

"Estimates indicate that the annual cost of corrosion in the petroleum industry," he says, "is in excess of $1,000,000."

Chemists are trying to discover means to combat this costly evil in this and other industries.

Get Automobile Out of Mudhole by New Device

Ordinarily only one rear wheel gets stuck in a mudhole in the road. If the mud is very soft, even chains may not prove of much use. However, you will find that a length of board fitted with wooden cleats, and through which a number of long spikes have been driven, as shown in the illustration, will provide a path for the wheel out of the hole. Another board nailed along the edge will prevent the wheel slipping off. When not in use it can be strapped under the running board.

A Cleated and Spiked Board, With a Guide Running Along One Edge, Will Help in Getting Your Automobile Out of Mudholes.

Go to Machine Shop in Purchasing New Piston

Just because dealers for many makes of cars, even in cities, do not carry spare pistons in stock should not cause motorists worry.

Large machine shops and parts jobbers carry stock pistons which can be machined down until they fit perfectly. This makes it unnecessary for the dealer to carry spare pistons. Further more, it is a difficult matter to make a new piston fit a worn engine unless it is machined. Obviously, it is not practical for a dealer to carry pistons of all different sizes, where sizes vary by sixteenths of an inch.

If a new piston is needed, it should be turned down until it just matches the old one. Both pistons should weigh the same. The machine shop also would fit the wrist pin and cut the grooves for the exact number of rings needed.

Of course, if all new pistons are being installed because of wear, they should be oversize.

Paris Plans Testing Two Wireless Control Autos

Driverless automobiles, controlled by wireless waves, are to be demonstrated publicly at a summer festival in Paris.

Two of the cars have been equipped with a mechanism that is said to work well in practice and they are to be operated on the Colombes stadium track, where the 1924 Olympic games were held. Wireless control of an air plane has been tested by the French army, but little has been said of the experiments except that they were successful.
